Questions asked over substandard flood wall

A mother and daughter were almost drowned when a substandard river flood wall broke in torrential rain in Northern Ireland.

Lisa Martin (36) and her nine-year-old daughter, Sophie, became trapped in the family's Volvo car when the vehicle was swept away in a flood on Tuesday night.

Mrs Martin, from Newtownstewart, was driving alongside the River Mourne when the flood wall broke sending thousands of gallons of water crashing over her car.

The County Tyrone mother said: "I just felt a thump as this wall of water hit the car. There was nothing we could do; the car was swept off the road and into the centre of the river.

"It was floating at first but I could feel it starting to sink and I grabbed Sophie and held her. I couldn't open the doors to get out because of the water pressure. Our family dog, Rex, was going mad with panic as well."

Just when all hope appeared to be lost, the car stuck momentarily on a sandbank allowing Mrs Martin to break the Volvo's back window and climb out with Sophie.

"Someone had phoned the fire brigade and they managed to put a ladder out from the bank and we crawled to safety. I have never been so scared," Mrs Martin said.

Now the incident is to be raised at the Northern Ireland assembly. Assembly member, George Doherty, said he intends raising the case with Stormont's Public Accounts Committee.

"It's a disgrace that the flood defences failed. After the river burst its banks four years ago, more than £3 million was spent strengthening the flood wall and now this.

"Mrs Martin and her little girl could have been drowned," Mr Doherty said.

Hero James braves floods for Rex

Article B

National Red Top Tabloid.

Hero fire officers in County Tyrone braved torrential flood waters to rescue a little girl's pet puppy.

Six-month-old Rex faced almost certain death on Tuesday when he became trapped in a car in the middle of a flooded river.

But just when all hope appeared to be gone, fearless fire fighter, James Boyle managed to snatch the Jack Russell pup to safety. Moments earlier, Rex's owner, nine-year-old Sophie Martin from Newtownstewart and her mum, Lisa (36) managed to escape from the car which was swept into the River Mourne when a flood wall broke.

Relieved mum Lisa said: "When I realised Rex was left behind, it was just awful. There was nothing anyone could do because the car was about to be swept off a sandbank it had settled on.

"Just when I had given up all hope and was about to tell Sophie, I heard Rex yelp and saw a big fireman wading through the water with him in his arms. I felt like crying; James is a real hero."

Fire officer, James played down his daring rescue.

He said: "When the boys saw little Sophie's big brown eyes filling with tears, they just couldn't let it go and we knew we had to do something to save Rex."

NewsToday says: If you think James and his team are heroes, nominate them for the NewsToday Local Hero awards by emailing localhero@ newstoday.com.
