Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission (NIHRC)

After the Good Friday Agreement was signed in 1998 the Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission (NIHRC) was established. The Commission's role is to promote awareness of the importance of human rights in Northern Ireland, some of these human rights are included in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR). The NIHRC reviews existing law and practice and advises the government on what steps need to be taken to fully protect human rights in Northern Ireland.

Also, as part of the Good Friday Agreement, the Northern Ireland Act was passed in 1998 and this law is about protecting human rights and ensuring equality of opportunity for all sections of the community in Northern Ireland. This act was designed to help combat sectarianism, racism and other forms of discrimination.

Getting into Debt

Anyone can get into debt. All it takes is one or two wrong turns such as missing a few credit card payments or forgetting to pay your electric bill can start the downward spiral into debt.

The culture in the UK today is very much “I want it now”. The fact is when people want something they don’t want to wait and save for it. The “buy now pay later” option allows people to purchase whatever it is they want and pay it back in instalments. But what most people don’t consider is the high interest they may end up paying.

Credit cards can be very useful but can also cause debt. If you need to make a large purchase and don’t get paid for another three weeks you can put it on your credit card. However, too many people see credit cards as an easy way of paying for things and spend too much and repay too little which can cause debt and stress of not knowing how to pay the money back.

Other possible reasons for getting into debt may include poor budgeting, poor health, increase in family size or an addiction.

The Working Environment

The law states that employers need to ensure that workplaces are safe and healthy areas in order that employees can carry out their work in an efficient manner.

Employers will have penalties imposed on them if they do not ensure the health and safety of their employees at all times. As a result of this, employees will demonstrate commitment in their work and achieve a high degree of satisfaction in their job and thus will build up a good relationship with their employer.

Some employees choose to join a trade union in the workplace.
