3 (a) Study Fig. 4.

The Cairngorm Reindeer Herd is the UK's only herd of reindeer, grazing near Aviemore in the Cairngorm Mountains in Scotland.

Reindeer were re-introduced into Scotland in 1952 by a Swedish Reindeer Herder, Mikel Utsi. When he migrated to Scotland he brought with him some of his Swedish mountain reindeer, to show that they could live and breed in these surroundings. They came across the North Sea by ship to Glasgow and then by road to the Cairngorms. The herd has grown in numbers over the years and there are now over a hundred reindeer grazing freely on the mountains.

Why have reindeer in the Cairngorms? They are useful in many ways. The animal is bred for meat and it fetches a good price in large UK cities such as London and Edinburgh. Clothing can be made from the skin. Reindeer hair can be woven into expensive dress material which is exported to Europe and the United States.

Antlers are carved for craft items bought by tourists who visit Aviemore from all over the world and trained reindeer can pull goods or people on sleds, especially at Christmas!

Fig. 4 Extract about the Cairngorm Reindeer Herd

- (i) Use evidence from Fig. 4 to identify the statement that describes the change which occurred near Aviemore in 1952. You should underline the correct answer from the choices below:

- Factories were set up to make clothing from reindeer skin;
- People began to graze reindeer again on the mountains;
- Reindeer were exported from Aviemore to Sweden;
- Tourists were attracted to Aviemore.
