Mark Scheme

Mark schemes are prepared by the Principal Examiner and considered, together with the relevant questions, by a panel of subject teachers. This mark scheme includes any amendments made at the standardisation events which all examiners participate in and is the scheme which was used by them in this examination. The standardisation process ensures that the mark scheme covers the candidates' responses to questions and that every examiner understands and applies it in the same correct way. As preparation for standardisation each examiner analyses a number of candidates' scripts: alternative answers not already covered by the mark scheme are discussed and legislated for. If, after the standardisation process, examiners encounter unusual answers which have not been raised they are required to refer these to the Principal Examiner.

It must be stressed that a mark scheme is a working document, in many cases further developed and expanded on the basis of candidates' reactions to a particular paper. Assumptions about future mark schemes on the basis of one year's document should be avoided; whilst the guiding principles of assessment remain constant, details will change, depending on the content of a particular examination paper.

An understanding of a range of professional roles is clearly shown. Large retail groups have visual merchandisers working for them, but smaller independents often use freelance visual merchandisers. The merchandiser is concerned with stock planning, management and control and can also include responsibility for distribution and allocation to stores.                  The retail buyer has the responsibilities to purchase relevant stock at the right prices and at the right time. If the retail outlet is small the buyer may also be the owner. In larger organisations the buyer can be involved in the design, sourcing and production processes.                  The sales manager will oversee the sales team who are responsible for the selling of stock to the general public.

Products are classified within different sectors. They ensure that British manufacture meets International safety standards. Manufacturers and companies can apply for a Kitemark, which is a registered certification mark owned and operated by the BSI. Products tested by the BSI improve customer's confidence. UKAS (United Kingdom Accreditation Service) is provided by the BSI or approves laboratories for accreditation.                  Product testing, for example tests carried out on fabric. Assurance labels and marks, for example the wool and cotton certified assurance labels can reassure consumers. The lion mark is a safety mark for children's toys introduced by the British Toy and Hobby Association. European standards of manufacturing safely are recognised by a CE mark and information. ISO represent international standards. Standards for the environment. Information regarding textile and material content of product components, information safe handling and care and maintenance. Safety in product disposal. Opportunities for re-cycling and product re-use. Low mark range                  Limited and very basic explanation of how safety standards are used to protect the consumer. Few examples and limited understanding shown. Sentences may not always be well connected. Arguments stray from the point or are weakly expressed. There will be a number of errors of grammar, punctuation and spelling. Mid mark range                  A more thorough explanation of how safety standards are used to protect the consumer. Some relevant examples given. Reasonable understanding shown. Candidates express straightforward ideas clearly if not always fluently. Sentences are reasonably well connected. There may be a small number of errors of spelling, grammar and punctuation.	(0 – 4 marks) (5- 8 marks)

1 5 (cont)	High mark range An in-depth answer, detailed and accurate explanation of how safety standards are used to protect the consumer. A very good range of examples given. Very detailed understanding shown. Candidates will have expressed complex ideas extremely clearly and fluently. Sentences and paragraphs follow on from one another smoothly and logically. There are few, if any errors of grammar, punctuation and spelling.	(9- 12 marks)
1 6	BOUCLÉ Boucle is a compound yarn created by a folding process, which results in wavy and looped textured surface to the yarn.  BOURETTE A bourette yarn is formed by a folding process of yarns which contain bunches of fibres which can be in regular or irregular intervals and can be in different colours. The bunching or knops of fibres may be formed during the carding, spinning or folding processes.  CHENILLE Chenille yarn is constructed by weaving a fabric first into a leno-effect woven structure with soft twisted yarns as the weft or filling yarns. The fabric is then cut length-wise into narrow strips, creating chenille yarns. A diagram may be used.  D SLUB Slub yarns are constructed from single or folded yarns. There are long thick areas of staple fibres forming the slubs, which are placed at regular or irregular intervals along the yarn.  Low mark range Limited and simplistic explanation of how selected novelty yarn is produced. Inaccurate information in response. Mid mark range A more thorough explanation of how selected novelty yarn is produced. Some accurate information in response. High mark range An in-depth answer, detailed and accurate explanation of how selected novelty yarn is produced. Excellent understanding shown.	(0- 1 mark) (2 marks) (3 marks) Total 2 x 3 marks

1 7	Processes could include the following: False-twist, Air-jet, stuffer-box and knit-deknit are the most common methods for texturising filaments. Reference may be made to crimping yarns, gear-crimping or edge-crimping or bulked-continuous-filament. Accurate method given and clear instructions given on the processes used to create texture. Reasons for the selected method of texturising or bulking synthetic filament fibres are given to support response. Low mark range Limited and simplistic explanation of method of processing synthetic filaments to create a textured effect. Inaccurate information in response and a basic explanation of the purpose of creating texture. Sentences may not always be well connected. There will be a number of errors of grammar, punctuation and spelling. Mid mark range A more thorough explanation of method of processing synthetic filaments to create a textured effect.
