2010 was an important year for tourism in Hong Kong. As part of the Hong Kong Tourism Board's marketing plan, it was named 'Festive Hong Kong 2010' and 'Hong Kong Wine and Food Year'.

Hong Kong received 36 million visitors in 2010, 20 million of whom stayed overnight in the country. The average length of stay was 3.6 nights, with hotel occupancy recorded at 87%. Inbound tourism contributed HK$210 billion to the economy in 2010. Most visitor arrivals were from mainland China. Hong Kong's location also makes it a popular destination for stop-over tourism, as it is accessible from all over the world.

According to the World Travel and Tourism Council predictions for 2011, leisure visitors are expected to account for a much greater contribution to the economy in Hong Kong than business tourists. Leisure tourism plays a significant role within Hong Kong's tourism industry, but it is important not to underestimate the significance of MICE tourism in this country. For example, the Hong Kong Convention and Exhibition Centre (HKCEC) hosted 1185 events in 2010 and has attracted more than 63 million visitors since it opened in 1988. HKCEC acts as an international hub, particularly for the Asian MICE industry. It offers six exhibition halls, two theatres, 52 meeting rooms, seven restaurants and two underground car parks. Its location next to the harbour gives it access to 6000 hotel rooms within walking distance and it is directly connected to the Renaissance Harbour View Hotel and the Grand Hyatt on Convention Plaza.

This purpose-built centre hosts an average of 1300 events each year and the building itself was voted one of the Top 60 Landmarks in China in 2009. HKCEC was voted Best Convention/Exhibition Centre in Asia in 2011. The Centre employs a total of 850 staff to ensure the efficient running of all of the events, exhibitions and conferences at the Centre. Each event has an Events Manager to plan and co-ordinate the event. HKCEC Management Ltd is responsible for all activities at the Centre, including marketing, bookings, scheduling, administration, security and food and beverage operations.
