Cruise Industry Overview

Today cruise ships offer a range of innovations including skydiving simulators, celebrity chef kitchens and facilities that allow all generations of a family to travel together.

In 2017 a record 25 million+ people went on a cruise, they spent $117 billion in total. This helped to create 950 000 jobs. It was then the fastest growing category of the leisure market.

The cruise industry responds quickly to the needs of its guests by adopting new destinations, new ship design, new and diverse onboard amenities plus wide ranging shore activities. New cruise themes are offered and voyage lengths vary.

New embarkation ports provide the tourist with convenience and cost savings which attract more customers.

Impact on destinations include:

- cruise line payments for port fees and local businesses can generate $500 million per year
- a cruise ship carrying 3000 passengers and 1250 crew generates around $500 000 per stopover.

Who goes on a cruise?

- it is preferred by families in the USA
- young people
- leisure tourists.

The cruise industry works with destinations to:

- give technical assistance for port improvements
- research the needs of cruise passengers
- provide training programmes
- support local humanitarian causes.
