This document consists of 28 printed pages.

Section A: Research Methods

- 1 Case studies involve an in-depth study of a single event. They are used by sociologists who gather qualitative data. Findings from case studies can be used in a number of ways in order to support a research strategy. However, there are also disadvantages with case studies. One way to overcome these disadvantages is to use triangulation.

Considering ethical issues is important with all research, but with case studies sociologists have to be particularly sensitive. Researchers also need to consider the position of the group that they are studying and how the data should be gathered. Case studies are small-scale and individual but similar studies can build a picture over time. Information of a more quantitative type is favoured by positivist sociologists. Social surveys are widely used to collect quantitative data.
