Part 3: Translation

Translate the following passage into Urdu.

Ahmed Faraz, like his tutor, Faiz Ahmed Faiz, was never afraid to stand up for his principles. People loved him, especially the young, and nobody wrote with more feeling about love. All were able to understand his simple but elegant style and the greatest singers of the age loved to set his verses to music.

An old friend remembered: "Faraz was a year senior to me when I joined Islamia College, Peshawar in 1954. He was very handsome and full of energy. He would gather students around him and read out his romantic poems. There was not much mixing of male and female students in those days. But somehow his poems managed to reach girl students as well and he would receive dozens of letters from them. The rich ones would have their servants deliver their letters while others would drop them in front of Faraz at bus stops". Ahmed Faraz won many prizes for his poetry. He died in Islamabad on 25 August 2008.
