Fig. 2.1 for Question 2Home or Away – Europe or the UK

Going abroad can be cheaper than staying in the UK. Prices for accommodation have risen dramatically over the last two years. Even though accommodation prices in Europe have risen, the accommodation prices in the UK are almost double those in the main European holiday destinations.

Accommodation prices in the UK are expected to increase even further as inflation is putting huge pressure on accommodation owners. The cost of fuel, food and insurance have all risen which means accommodation owners will be forced to charge more.

The currency exchange rate is currently good, meaning holidays in Europe will be better value for money.
